Dear Rick:

I am pleased to say that the computer system specified in your fax of this morning is satisfactory, subject to the addition of an Ethernet card, and I will be instructing our Purchasing Department to prepare a Purchase Order for the system. To confirm, I am sending the system specifications, as set out in your fax, on a following page. Our storekeeper is off today, so the P.O. requisition will not be generated until Monday, but you may regard the order as firm.

As we discussed on the telephone, my budget for this purchase is stretched to the limit at the price quoted for the P133 system without the Ethernet card, let alone a power conditioning unit, so any relief that you can arrange by way of educational discounts will be important. I trust you will exert your best efforts in this regard.

I intend to add a SCSI DAT drive, and may wish to upgrade the monitor, within a year after purchase as my budget allows. I would be interested to receive quotes from you, at a convenient future time, on internal/external 4 GB SCSI DAT drives (including Archive Python), and quality 17" multisync monitors.

Thank you for your initiative in putting together the specified system. I appreciate your interest in helping me find the system I need. I look forward to hearing positive results from your negotiations with your distributors.

Yours truly,

David P. Steele, Ph.D.
